Transcript Analysis Form for Counseling Skills

The Transcript Analysis Form for Counseling Skills can be utilized by instructors for students who are transcribing counseling sessions (such as during the counseling microskills course). The “Skills and Competencies” section of transcript analysis assignments have not traditionally included skills and competencies specific to working with clients with disabilities. Instructors may consider guiding students to identify a disability-related counseling competency addressed by a specific counseling skill.

For example, in the “Skills and Competencies” section of a transcript analysis assignment a student might include: “A.3 Demonstrate comfort and respectful behavior in interacting with PWDs, by knowing how to: be authentic, use common courtesies, and not pity or patronize” (Chapin et al., 2018, p. 2).
